MY APPROACH

The most important thing is that we can build a relationship together that feels safe, and helps me to work with you in a way that is important than any particular method or theory could ever be.

For instance to work with both short term or chronic or more deeply rooted problems that just don't seem to move on. My approach is integral as well as being informed by my training in Gestalt, Person Centred, and Solution Focused Therapy. I am also trained in EMDR and Hypnotherapy.

My approach is to work with you in a way that is meaningful to you, and that you are comfortable with. I am also trained in EMDR and Hypnotherapy, although I have not yet practised either of these therapies.

Tips For Buying A Lifestyle Business

Since March last year I have received an increasing number of enquiries for "lifestyle businesses" from families where the main wage earners hold respectable jobs with large companies in the London and Home Counties areas.

These people are looking to move away from the stresses and strains both of increasingly demanding and stressful work situations and of London and the stresses that the big city brings in day-to-day life. These people are looking not only for a new career but also for a new life for them and their families.

This is a very big step to take and should not be taken lightly. So what should you do if you feel like "going it alone" and getting away from a stressful career?

First off, do not make the decision lightly. Talk to family, friends and significant others, gain their insight, opinions and advice. We would recommend that you do not discuss this with work colleagues.

Secondly, do your research in terms of what you will do next, investigate setting up on your own and or purchasing an existing business. In fact do crazy amounts of research! Give these first two steps a large amount of time. Investigate all the options.

Thirdly. Get your finances in order and take good financial advice. I have some good Independent Financial Advisers on my panel and I welcome more to join me. Use this advice and everything you have gained in the previous steps to influence actions and decisions in the next steps. Work out if you will need additional finance and also work out if you can afford repayments.

Fourth step. Fix your budgets and resolve to stick to them. Do not underestimate the costs of professional fees such as consultants, accounts, solicitors and surveyors. Make sure you factor everything in. Remember also at this point to factor in time from annual leave allowances for the following steps. Whilst doing all of this be sure to keep your immediate family up to date and involved.

Fifth Step. This is where the fun really starts! For those looking to buy a business, its time to go out there and start to find the dream.

Start talking to brokers and registering with them now.

A good broker will want to ask a lot of detailed questions, so be prepared for this. Also look at asking a broker to find you a business that may not be on the market yet. I along with my extensive Network can help you here. You may find you end up doing quite a lot of traveling to and from different opportunities.

Tips For Buying A Lifestyle Business

If possible visit the business as a customer first incognito. This will give you a feel for what the business is really like.

Once you have found your ideal business, make an offer and inform your solicitor and accountant at this point.

A good broker will work with you and your advisers closely to achieve a good outcome. At this point it may seem that the wheels are grinding very slowly. This is normal. Remember to take plenty of time to relax during this stage and also to spend time with family and significant others, you may be surprised at how much help they can be.

You can start thinking about your resignation letter at this point and arranging those leaving parties with the colleagues you have worked with for so long. Don't forget to drop a few discount vouchers around for the new business!

Once you have taken over the business and relocated, you need to work hard to make a go of the new venture but do enjoy it and make the dream work for you.

On completion day do remember to have enough funds available for any eventuality especially if the business is sold SAV (you will need to pay for remaining stock at that point in cleared funds, before you can take ownership).

Please also note that you may not get credit facilities from suppliers that are enjoyed by the current owners so you may have to pay for new supplies there and then or up front.

This is the most important time for you to start building long lasting relationships with the existing client base and this should be undertaken before making any drastic changes to the business.

After this it is important to build and acquire new clients and change the business as you wish whilst being careful not to upset the existing clientele.

Remember though to take regular time out from the business to relax and refocus. This will also help you if times get tough.

If you are taking the route of wanting to buy a lifestyle business and would like to know more then please do not hesitate to contact me in the strictest of confidence for a chat or to arrange to meet up for a confidential chat face to face over a cup of tea.

Who buys Lifestyle Businesses/

In my latest "Throwback Thursday" I look at career changers who buy lifestyle businesses.

I talk a lot here about career changers who want to buy lifestyle businesses.

I openly advertise for people who want to sell their lifestyle business to contact me as I have buyers available. I receive enquiries on a weekly basis from potential buyers who want to leave their current careers behind to work on a lifestyle business for me to act for them in a confidential capacity.

Who wants to quit a good career for a lifestyle business?

WHO ARE THESE PEOPLE AND WHAT DO THEY LOOK LIKE?

I took my last 12 months data and extrapolated some figures from it combined with checking some facts with the individuals involved. This data is also compiled into a 27 page report which can be made available to qualified parties.

SO LET US TAKE A CLOSER LOOK AT THESE PEOPLE AND THEIR PROFILES.

First of all we can look at age groups:

Age range	Percentage
under 30	2.13%
30 – 40	16.31%
40 – 50	40.43%
50 – 60	29.08%
60 +	12.06%

Here we can see that the desire for change peaks between the ages of 40 and 50. Much of this age range will have worked for over 20 years. This is one driver for change.

Next we can take a small glimpse at life at home.

Home Life	Percentage
Single	7.80%
Co-Habiting	28.37%
Married	21.28%
Married With Children	42.55%

The full report reveals that the stronger the home life in terms of family the desire for a quieter life away from London life strengthens.

Let us now take a look at the staff grade of these people.

Who buys Lifestyle Businesses

Grade	Percentage	Annual Salary	Percentage
Non-management Junior Grade	2.13%	< £50,000	5.67%
Manager	51.77%	£50,000 – £75,000	29.08%
Director	21.28%	£75,000 – £100,000	55.32%
Vice President	6.38%	£100,000 – £200,000	5.67%
Other senior grade	18.44%	Over £200,000	4.26%

At manager level the desire to change career peaks.
Let us also look at their working locations.

Work Location	Percentage
Canary Wharf	28.37%
Home	4.96%
London City	35.46%
London Other	9.93%
London West End	14.18%
Other	7.09%

When I started looking into this I did not expect Canary wharf to show such a high result.

As we carry on looking at the current make-up of the individual looking to change career into a lifestyle business we can now take a look at annual salaries.

We can see from these figures that the desire for change is strongest in the £50,000 – £100,000 pay bracket. Just before we move on from who wants to change career let us look at the sectors that they work in:

Sector	Percentage
Banking	24.82%
Legal	10.64%
Accountancy	14.18%
Professional Services	35.46%
Other	14.89%

I was surprised by the figures here when I added everything up. Professional Services features more highly than banking. However I remember some of my earliest clients in the lifestyle business sector who are also career changers. Mostly 40-50 years of age. Manager Grade. Settled or married mostly with children and earning up to £100,000 a year!

Now that we have looked at who the career changer is. Let us look at where they wish to be in life.

Who buys Lifestyle Businesses

First of all let us look how much they are looking to invest in a lifestyle business.

Budget	Percentage
Less than 50,000	4.26%
£50,000 – £100,000	21.28%
£100,000 – £250,000	24.82%
£250,000 – £500,000	39.01%
£500,000 – £1,000,000	8.51%
Over £1,000,000	2.13%

A number of people we speak to take into account the difference in price between housing cost within reasonable commuting distance (<1 hour) of their primary working location and their desired location when changing career. Lastly for this part of my report let us look at the locations where people are looking to relocate to and base their new lives.

Preferred Locations	Percentage
Central England	8.51%
Europe	4.96%
International (Non Europe)	3.55%
Ireland (Northern and Republic)	5.67%
North East England	7.09%
North West England	6.38%
Scotland	14.18%
South East England	14.18%
South West England	24.82%
Wales	10.64%

It is worth noting the following. Those considering relocation outside of the mainland (England Scotland and Wales) generally have very strong family and social ties to their preferred location. Scotland also sees this trend with the South West being an idyllic and profitable choice, whereas South East England is seen as a "safe bet".

This is all for this part of my report.
I have compiled a lot more data and will share this on this website in due course.
I have a full report available to qualified parties.

In my opinion it would also be worth a career changer's while reading The Trade House. Please click here for more information.

Our Story

The Trade House was originally established as a venture by Court Guinness in 2008.

The Trade House has been a brand of Court Guinness since 2008. After one venture closed the name became essentially dormant until I resurrected it a few months ago for use as an umbrella brand and the new name for the magazine. The roots of the magazine go back much further.

The very first iteration of the magazine was a four page PDF called "The P2 List" that advertised business opportunities on behalf of The P2 Set Limited. At the time one of Court's specialised subject was the brokerage of technology based businesses. The list was a basic PDF with the original P2 logo at the top of every page. It looked every inch the Word Document it was!

The P2 List became The P2 Magazine when Court diversified his business to encompass the brokerage of all types of deal and business in 2014. In 2017 in an attempt to broaden readership the magazine was rebranded "Weekly Deals" and went from a quarterly to a weekly publication schedule. There has been the odd experiment with other names too!

After Court retired from active brokerage in March 2018, he decided he wanted to keep his hand in with brokerage and deal making – something he is very passionate about. His medical team insisted he leave full time work but he decided to keep publishing Weekly Deals. However it soon became apparent that a weekly publishing schedule was not conducive to his ongoing health issues, so he reverted to a monthly publishing schedule that he is now happy with. Because of this change a new name had to be found. While searching around his archive of marketing collateral for inspiration for a mild rebrand he came across some old Trade House stuff and decided that the Trade House name would be appropriate for a magazine stuffed full of business and property deals and opportunities.

In August 2008 the "Spiritual father" of The Trade House Magazine was born which comprised of just four pages and £65,000 worth of deals and opportunities. This edition has 56 pages and over £210,000,000 of business opportunities.

This latest issue is bigger and brighter than the first four page Word Document and has also spurred on our new strap line "Hopefully Europe's biggest and brightest business deal magazine!"

Court Guinness is a keen proponent of continuous improvement and strives to make each issue better than the last..

Why Confidential Deals

We are often asked why are so many confidential deals advertised on your website?

The answer is quite simple. Many of my clients do not wish to stick their heads above the parapet. There are many reasons for doing a deal and in many circumstances our clients do not wish these to be broadcast. Selling or buying a business, seeking joint ventures or new investment is a delicate thing and many of our customers do not wish their affairs to be discussed by Mrs Kelly and Mrs Smith over afternoon tea at the local WI whilst driving! In fact 99% of our clients would be very unhappy about this.

This confidence also allows me to target a market more broadly. Keeping things low key allows a greater pool of partners, investors, purchasers and vendors to be sought. Many investors also do not wish to openly stick their heads above the parapet.

I lead the way in confidential sales yet I am always happy to talk to people who fit the profile for a particular deal, if you would like to find out more about a particular opportunity on my website all you have to do is call me or email me and ask me. Yes. Many opportunities require an NDA to be signed but this is not an onerous task.

What Is Happening In Retail?

After being out of action for a while and not having my usual on demand access to the news channels I have just found out that both Maplin and Toys R Us have gone into administration or liquidation and are closing down. To make the first point I am sad that Maplin are going from our high streets. They nearly always have had the parts I need in stock for an electronics or computer project or just some general stuff around the house like a new lead for the telly. The shops are great if I need something in a hurry. I will miss them.

As a father, I have to say I have slightly less sympathy for Toys R Us! Many is the time I have had my wallet well and truly dredged in their stores my daughter who is now 11 years old! I am sure there are any mothers and fathers who feel the same way about Toys R Us! The pile it high sell it cheap model of my nearest branch irks me in the way it puts too much choice and variety in the hands of a child.

So where is it all going wrong for retail?

Sat in a hospital as I have been recently I have been bored and had plenty of time to ponder this one. You see this is the way I see it. A lot of this shopping can be done online. I am no fan of retail parks, never have been and never will be. A trip to one fills with dread! If I can shop online I will! I hardly ever go to a Tesco or Sainsbury's these days I order online and they and my weekly shop come to me. This is much better.

The second thing to my mind is the experience factor. People want experiences these days as opposed to the mundane. they want something to brag about to their friends on Facebook and Instagram. This I think is where the likes of Value Retail have it nailed with their designer shopping villages. Visiting my nearest one, which is Bicester village in Oxfordshire is an experience and generally a good day out. My only criticism of Bicester Village is that every time I have visited it has been very, very busy! I must try and time my next visit at a quieter time if one exists! Hardly a month goes by either without one of my friends posting about a visit to Bicester Village on social media.

This is where it is at. Shopping at Maplin, Toys R Us or Even Tesco's is not an experience it is a chore and sometimes a horrid one at that. Do not get me started on Saturday or Sunday afternoons in IKEA! Writing this from a hospital bed I wired up to a monitor I can assure you I would rather be here than in many retail outlets! Shopping is that bad. I would much rather do my shopping from the comfort of my own home if I can. If more retailers made shopping an enjoyable experience in store I might visit more often for that experience. Pile it high, sell it cheap isn't going to work in store when I have a nice laptop, a lovely cup of tea, my favourite chair and a pile of chocolate biscuits to help me shop. I can even listen to my favourite music as well. I know I am not alone in this school of thought!

High street units cost a lot of money to rent and keep going for example, staff, stock, heat and light. Point is many people both hate and avoid going to the store and would rather shop online! Thus high street units could be seen as a waste of money to the retailer and an expensive one at that.

If retailers make more of an experience of visiting the store and also make their online presence a little more slick into the bargain some retailers might not face difficulties such as the ones faces by Toys R Us and Maplin and might even increase sales.

Market Comment

Court Guinness resurrects an old column he used to write in which he takes an opinionated and sometimes irreverent view of what he sees in the market place.

In this issue he looks back on 2018 and looks forwards to 2019 as a whole and shares his thoughts with us.

To say that 2018 has been a challenging year is one big understatement, many readers of Market Comment and other writings of mine will know of the wholesale changes I have made in 2018 including a number of changes to this magazine. I know that many readers do appreciate them though.

2018 has however been an excellent year for our business and generally speaking our businesses what 2019 will bring especially with regards to Brexit is anyone's guess

The first thing to talk about this month is retail. Physical retail is going so badly wrong on so many levels. I blame some landlords for intransigent and not helping their tenants by sticking to the letter of the contract, some flexibility will go along a way. I blame some landlords for being too quick to go for a residential conversion. At the end of the day if a high street goes so does a community. Now that is a shame. I have written elsewhere about making retail an experience. I think retail as a business wants to do this however I do not believe they have buy in from the property people or the finance people! If retail can change for the better then it is better for everyone. I do see interesting opportunities for forward thinking retailers in 2019. 2018 has been a torrid time for retail and I year I think the sector would like to forget. Onwards and upwards!

While we talk about getting people through doors, pub landlords must stand up and take some stick from me this month. News has been reaching me of some hideous and in some cases unjustifiable rent increases recently. Again a pub is a part of a community as much as a retail unit. Pubs have had a tough time in recent years we can see this by the number of closures of pubs. Give your tenants a break! It will be worth it in the long run! The odd percentage point here or there, yes but 20% +? Computer says no!

I now move on to freelancers and independent contractors who are foaming at the mouth after the budget announcement that the tax system of off payroll working (IR35) will not be extended to the private sector just yet.

For many years IT contracting was my trade. That aside this industry has had since 1999 to clean up its act, to change its modus operandi and to move with the times. Writing this one day after the Autumn 2018 budget I have already seen so many contractors bleating on email and social media about this. The problem is that the industry does not want to change. This is a bad thing for projects up and down the country and some need to shape up or ship out!

Businesses have started to be affected by Brexit already and not just the headline grabbers that are prevalent especially in the automotive sector in the West Midlands but smaller businesses too. The Trade House had its own run in with Brexit and new rules in August that meant a complete technology migration on an exceedingly tight time frame! Examples of these events I predict will pick up pace and all businesses I believe will be affected. I have seen a drop in values of small foreign businesses owned by British ex-patriates large enough to make Manchester United football club's fall from grace seem like a minor glitch! I predict that business values and deal values will soften in the next 12 months, especially if inward investment chains and supply chains are unduly compromised.

The Trade House Business Opportunities For All

Court Guinness

Hopefully The United Kingdom's Biggest And Brightest Business Opportunities Free Sheet

All however will not be lost if a keen marketplace with a can-do attitude to deal making emerges from Brexit. I look forward to seeing the application of intelligence and ingenuity assisting this. There is more than enough of both qualities out there in the market place to make this feasible.

Aside of this negativity this September has been a lovely month aside of the negativity above. Its lovely to see the property development guys being so active in the run up to the festive season, deals regularly being struck and plans made revitalise properties previously unusable. I note a great deal valour going into these projects too with some developers clearly unafraid to push the boundaries—in a good way! I hope we see more this sense of adventure in years to come. It is actually a good thing for business as a whole and an excellent thing for the sector itself.

In spite of daylight hours drawing in November does look like it will be an excellent month for dealmaking with many people looking to get a large number of deal before the Christmas party and festive season starts with aplomb.

Please note that I am delighted to hear readers views about this column or any other aspect of this magazine.

I look forward to speaking with you all again on a regular basis in 2019

I should like to close by taking this opportunity to wish all our readers a very happy Christmas and a very happy and prosperous 2019.

Happy dealmaking !

Warmest regards
Court

Dark Restaurants??

That headline sounds like it should land me in serious hot water on racism grounds, doesn't it?

Fear not. What I am discussing today are changes in the way restaurants run their businesses and changes that are happening within the marketplace, that in some ways are a good thing for the small restaurant owner.

You see there has been a massive take up in the use of delivery services, such as Deliveroo, Uber eats, Just Eat and many more. People are preferring to eat at home. The next point here is that with changes over time in the way that dishes are cooked and even delivered a greater range is available to the customer that wants food that was unavailable five years or even ten years is now available for delivery.

If I look at the Deliveroo app on my phone I can get a delivery of some beautiful dishes including one of my favourite steak cuts cooked, the way I like it with some some beautiful side orders from a lovely boutique restaurant that I have visited many times and whose food I really enjoy.

This is where we start to scratch the surface with "dark restaurants". Services such as Deliveroo are increasing certain restaurants turnover dramatically. However with certain restaurants this can cause a problem with the ambience of a restaurant and the dining experience.

On a consultancy basis I have encountered this with some restaurants. The owners say they are receiving feedback from eat-in customers, that the heavy traffic in and out of a restaurant of delivery riders and drivers is spoiling the ambience of a meal.

This is where dark restaurants come in. Imagine yourself as a restaurant owner that provides not only excellent food but an experience and occasion for diners that the delivery business is impacting. How would you like to keep both revenue streams and both sets of customers happy? This is where a dark restaurant makes sense.

A dark restaurant sees no customers it is just a kitchen cooking the same fantastic and flavoursome dishes, providing exactly the same menu to the same high standards. The only customers it will ever see are delivery riders and drivers. Therefore it does not need a high street presence. It needs space for a delivery vehicle to turn around, the kitchen and associated staff facilities. It can be placed across town in cheaper premises if needs be.

Therefore the term dark restaurant. It is invisible to eat-in dining customers. The lights are not on for them! They get the experience and occasion at the restaurant. Some restaurant owners may not be able to convert their premises to accommodate delivery crews and expectant eat in customers separately on the same site.

Dark retail has been an acceptable business term for some time.. Now it is time to add dark restaurants to that acceptable business term list.
